

A close-up photograph of a Christmas tree branch. In the foreground, a needle-felted house ornament hangs from a thin gold string. The house is made of light-colored felt with a dark brown roof and a chimney. It features gold beaded trim along the edges and windows. The base of the house is decorated with a row of small red and white flowers. In the background, a clear glass bauble filled with gold glitter hangs from another string. The tree's green needles and warm white lights are visible in the background.
